T is like a market-fair; The hubbub rises deafening on the air: The children spend their honest money there; The knaves prow out like foxes from a lair. Who buys? Who sells? Alas, and still alas! The children sell their diamond stones for glass; The knaves their worthless stones for diamonds pass. He laughs who buys; he laughs who sells. Alas! In the days when New England was only a group of thinly settled wildernesses called provinces, there was something almost like the old feudal tenure of lands there, and a relation between the rich landowner and his tenants which had many features in common with those of the relation between margraves and vassals in the days of Charlemagne.
