Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from An Address, Delivered Before the Trustees and Students The cause of education, for its prosperity, depends on the interest taken in it by its friends; and when it is thought how much all are indebted to it, it might at first seem strange, that it should ever want the encouragement which it is in their power to give. But when we look out upon the jarring interests of community, - the noise and strife which pervade the business world; - when we see the rush there is to improvement, to discovery, to invention, to everything indeed that can interest the feelings, promote pecuniary advantage, or add to the pleasures of sense, we find a satisfactory solution of the fact. Indeed we see even the devotees of learning in danger of being turned aside by these counter influences; and any of those who are called to mingle in these commotions, and to listen to the world's discordant harmony, may well consider themselves fortunate, if they have never felt the paralyzing influence of these things on...
