

Ship of Light

By SUSAN SHAW SAILER

Port Yonder Press. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 74 pages. Dimensions: 8.5in. x 5.5in. x 0.2in. The speaker in Ship of Light is a woman aware that she has entered the last phase of her life, where it is easy to view time only as a process that reverse-sculpts people, robbing an artist of her creativity or ending the life of a man devoted to helping others. But time also offers new possibilities, such as taking the first bite of a luscious persimmon or having toenails painted purple by a granddaughter. These poems balance a sense of loss with a belief in the capacity to discover wonder in the most unlikely places. PYP has given this poetry book a PG 14 rating for light language, moderate sensuality, and adult themes. Ship of Light by Susan Sailer is an engagement with necessary living: Do the singing now, voice asthmatic, alto-pitched, praising Aprils thousandgreens. In her brave rendering of elegy after elegy, Sailer shows us the frailties of the body but always coupled with the burgeoning of stunning language and unexpected new growth. These lovely poems honor the exuberance of the moment, the poignancy of change in a world where sorrow is always tied...
