A witness has before him the fear of infamy attaching to one detected in a lie, the fear of committing sin and the knowledge that there was such a thing as prosecution for perjury. He thought there should be more prosecutions for deliberate perjury. He mentioned five causes why people were sometimes unable to speak the truth, though willing: --(1.) Lack of opportunity to observe the matters as to which they were asked to give evidence. (2.) A defective vision. (3-) Want of judgment to discriminate facts from inferences. (4.) Bad memory. (5.) Want of power to express clearly and accurately what was clear to the faculty of observation. true, the defendant's solicitor could go in the box and deny it. The Court of Appeal said this was a shocking suggestion and a monstrous charge, the result being that the verdict obtained was not allowed to stand. The four most important points of divergence between the mercantile laws of England and Scotland are probably the following: --- (1.) In contracts, the absence from Scottish law of consideration. (2.) In sales, the absence from Scottish law of the provisions of the Statute of Frauds, now embodied in section 4 of the Sale of Goods act. (3.) In companies law, the absence from the law of Scotland of floating charges. (4.) In partnership, the absence in Scottish law of the firm as a separate person. There appears to...
